Slide into Summer Reading
Big Summer Read 2019

Quirky Reading Facts

Dr. Seuss wrote ‘Green Eggs and Ham’ because he bet his publisher 50 dollars that he could write a book in 50 words or less. The book contains exactly 50 words.

When J.K. Rowling visited the chatroom of Mugglenet, she was told by regulars to keep quiet as she didn’t know enough about Harry Potter.

Michael Morpurgo writes all of his books in exercise books – sitting on his bed, propped up with pillows.

Hans Christian Anderson, when staying in hotels, always carried a coil of rope with him in case he needed to escape from a fire.

The following phrases originally came from Shakespeare:-

- Dead as a doornail
- Wear your heart on your sleeve
- All of a sudden
- Green-eyed monster

See what other quirky reading fact you can find.